

How to: get social

An initiative of

World Cancer Day
4 February

#IAmAndIWill
worldcancerday.org

Let's spark a conversation around the world.

The power of social media means that each of us – organisations and individuals - have the opportunity to connect with more and more people as we share and exchange ideas and information. As we continue to raise awareness, improve education and inspire action on World Cancer Day, social media helps to carry our messages so that all of our voices can be heard and amplified.

By sharing your own opinions, stories, and concerns about cancer on social media, you're helping to create a wider and deeper conversation so that we can continue to build understanding around the issues in cancer, mobilise support and keep cancer at the top of the global health agenda.

Official hashtags

Let's unite online. By tagging your posts with the official hashtags, supporters around the world can follow the conversations happening on social media.

Tag your posts with the hashtags:

#WorldCancerDay

#IAmAndIWill

Create a social media event

Bring together your community with a social media event. Why not host a Twitter festival and engage your local government representative, host a live Facebook chat with an expert, or share your story on Instagram stories?

Top five tips

1

Include both World Cancer Day hashtags (#WorldCancerDay and #IAmAndIWill) to all your posts – using official hashtags will help create a wave of engagement

4

Experiment with videos, gifs, images and other content to keep things interesting – visual content grabs attention and is ten times more likely to get engagement

2

Spread the love. In addition to posting content on your platform, engage with other supporters on theirs

5

Make it personal – let your genuine passion for the issues around cancer drive your content and the way you engage

3

Why limit posting on just World Cancer Day? Post in the days and weeks leading up to 4 February

Bonus tip: We all love stories and social media is a great platform to share and tell stories to provide inspiration and motivation to your own friends and followers.
