World
Cancer Day
4 February

 UICC

World Cancer Day is an initiative of the Union for International Cancer Control.

Cancer is the second leading cause of death worldwide. Together, we can change that.

While we live in a time of awe-inspiring advancements in cancer prevention, diagnosis and treatment, many of us who seek cancer care hit barriers at every turn. Income, education, geographical location and discrimination based on ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, age, disability and lifestyle are just a few of the factors that can negatively affect care.

This year's World Cancer Day's theme, "Close the Care Gap", is all about raising our voices to engage our leaders. We will call on leaders to eliminate health inequities by addressing their root causes, ensuring that everyone has access to quality health services when, where and how they need them.

Join us on 4 February to speak out and stand up for a world less burdened by cancer.

Campaign Theme 2022-2024

Whoever you are, you have the power to reduce the impact of cancer for yourself, the people you love and for the world.

The last year of our campaign is all about bringing attention to a higher level—literally. We will raise our voices to engage our leaders. Now that we have knowledge and a united community by our side, we are ready to shake the very foundations of injustice—to become lifelong advocates fully equipped to push for lasting change.

We call on governments to eliminate health inequities by addressing their root causes, ensuring that everyone has access to quality health services when, where and how they need them.

It's time to close the care gap.

What do we mean by “inequity”?

In healthcare, inequality refers to the uneven distribution of resources. By contrast, inequity means unjust, avoidable differences in care or outcomes.

The difference may seem subtle, but closing the cancer care gap isn't really about simply providing everyone with equal resources. One size doesn't fit all, and every challenge demands a different solution. Equity is about giving everyone what they need to bring them up to the same level.

“Cancer is a disease we often diagnose too late and have too few ways to prevent it in the first place; where there are stark inequities based on race, disability, ZIP Code, sexual orientation, gender identity, and other factors.”

Joe Biden, President of the United States

Key issues

Explore the barriers that stand in the way of cancer care

- Gender norms and discrimination
- Barriers for minority populations
- Socioeconomic status
- The rural-urban divide
- Age discrimination
- Refugee status and forced displacement
- Homophobia, transphobia and related discrimination
- Barriers for care for people with disabilities

Where you live. Who you are. Where you come from. What you do. Who you love. These are called the social determinants of health, and they represent the many factors that may lead to inequities. They can unfairly stand between you and cancer prevention, diagnosis and treatment.

Did you know?

10 million people died from cancer in 2020.

70% of cancer deaths occur in low-to-middle income countries.

Less than 30% of low-income countries have cancer treatment services available (compared to 90% in high-income countries).

Did you know?

Over 350,000 children in low-income countries are missing out on cancer treatment.

For white women in the US, the five-year survival rate for cervical cancer is 71%. For black women, the rate is just 58%.

In New Zealand, Māori are twice as likely to die from cancer as non-Māori.

Cancer kills nearly 10 million people a year and some 70% of those are aged 65 or older, yet older populations face disproportionate barriers to effective treatment.

In refugee populations, cancer is more likely to be diagnosed at an advanced stage, leading to worse outcomes.

Up to 3.7 million lives could be saved each year through resource appropriate strategies for prevention, early detection and timely and quality treatment.

Appeal to your political leaders

When it comes to cancer, many of us are denied basic care, even though we live in a time of awe-inspiring advancements in cancer prevention, diagnosis and treatment. This is the equity gap – and it's costing lives.

The Union for International Cancer Control, the founding organisation of World Cancer Day, is launching a Call to Action to close this cancer care gap, which every citizen can sign and share with their government. Citizens can call on their representatives to implement policies to improve health equity, facilitate access to affordable and accessible cancer services for all populations, and reduce disparities in cancer incidence and mortality.

The Call to Action is available in English, French and Spanish. It can also be downloaded in nine additional languages: Brazilian Portuguese, German, Russian, Arabic, Bahasa, simplified and traditional Chinese, Japanese, and Korean.

The screenshot shows a digital form titled "Key actions that governments can take" with a list of 9 items. To the right is a signatory section with fields for "First Name", "Email Address", and "Last Name". Below these is a dropdown menu to "select country to find your targets" and a search bar labeled "We'll notify your representative. Please enter a search term to continue." The form includes a pre-written letter template addressed to a representative, asking for action to close the cancer care gap. It also has a checkbox for "I would like to stay informed about the World Cancer Day campaign." and a large orange button at the bottom labeled "Add your voice".

You're invited!

We're on a mission to reduce inequities in global cancer care, and guess what? You can help. It's all about an invite. Many people do not have access to the care they need because of who they are and where they live. It's time to change that. And for this, we invite you to join our Call to Action and help us make sure the message reaches every corner of the world.

First, sign the Call to Action, then go to the link in the highlights of World Cancer Day on Instagram and screenshot the invite. Then all you have to do is fill in the template:

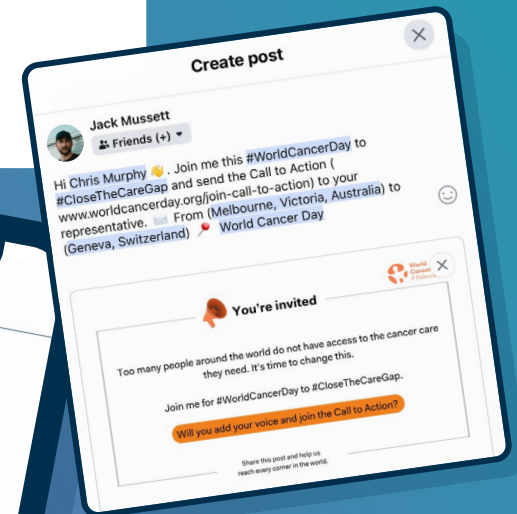

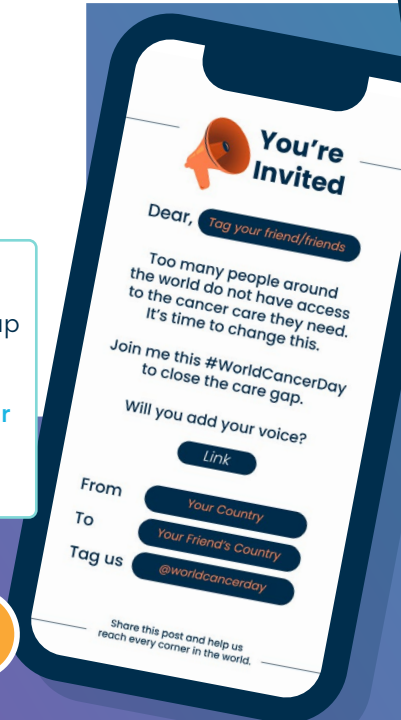

- Tag your friend.
- Add the Call to Action link (www.worldcancerday.org/join-call-to-action).
- Tag your country.
- Tag your friend's country.
- Tag @worldcancerday.

This invite is open to everyone. Round up your crew, rally your neighbours, and don't forget to rope in your globe-trotting friends. We're trying to spread this message across the globe.

You can also share the invite on other preferred social media channels. All you have to do is copy and paste the template text below and use this image (here we are creating a modified template); just make sure to tag everyone in the caption.

You can download the different invite templates here.

Get inspired: Ideas for impact

Highlighting early detection and hope

The Ghanaian cancer organisation, Breast Care International (BCI), organised a Meet Press event on World Cancer Day, which aimed to highlight the significance of early cancer detection, with a focus on breast cancer. It featured panel discussions covering various aspects of cancer, such as the latest treatment advancements, the media's role in cancer awareness campaigns, and the healthcare community's vital involvement in the fight against cancer. Cancer survivors also shared their stories and experiences, inspiring hope and encouraging others to seek treatment.

Get moving

To mark World Cancer Day, the Hungarian League Against Cancer held a press conference and presented e-learning modules on cancer prevention and early detection. The League organised a charity yoga event and launched a campaign to promote physical activity, support cancer patients and ensure regular screening for the disease. The League also held walks in several Hungarian regions, encouraging cancer prevention measures and supporting those affected by the disease.

Cycling to raise funds against cancer

The Shaukat Khanum Memorial Cancer Hospital and Research Centre in Pakistan focused its World Cancer Day event on raising awareness of cancer patients and access to quality care. As part of UICC's 5K Challenge, 130 cyclists, including women and children, rode to highlight the difficulties of accessing care in remote areas. Volunteers also carried out educational activities on campus. The event raised funds towards the construction of the country's largest cancer hospital in Karachi.

Inspire with a song

The Pancreatic Cancer Coalition and the Pancare Foundation in Australia released "Impressions of You". The song was first selected as the World Pancreatic Anthem but was unanimously voted to be shared with the UICC as the anthem for World Cancer Day to emphasise that no one should face cancer alone. The song featured contributions from talented individuals, including singer and actor Amy Manford, and has gained worldwide recognition in 49 countries. All proceeds from royalties went directly to cancer programmes.

“World Cancer has become the most amplified and impactful global platform for all cancer patients and advocates – a platform where we can all make noise, lots of noise, reminding all that we can win the war on cancer.”

HRH Princess Dina Mired of Jordan
