As I close my eyes,
The worries of the heart bid farewell, and away it flies.

A gush of wind breathes through my brown hair,
The soles of my feet press on the sand beneath it, soft and fair.

The smiling sun rises,
Awaiting surprises.

The silent sea comes close ashore,
The wave of hope raises its arms wide and more.

Today will be better than yesterday,
In every hopeful way.

BOOM!

One after the other, bombs were fired from the ship's cannons,
Red, orange, and yellow lit the gloomy grey sky, held on.

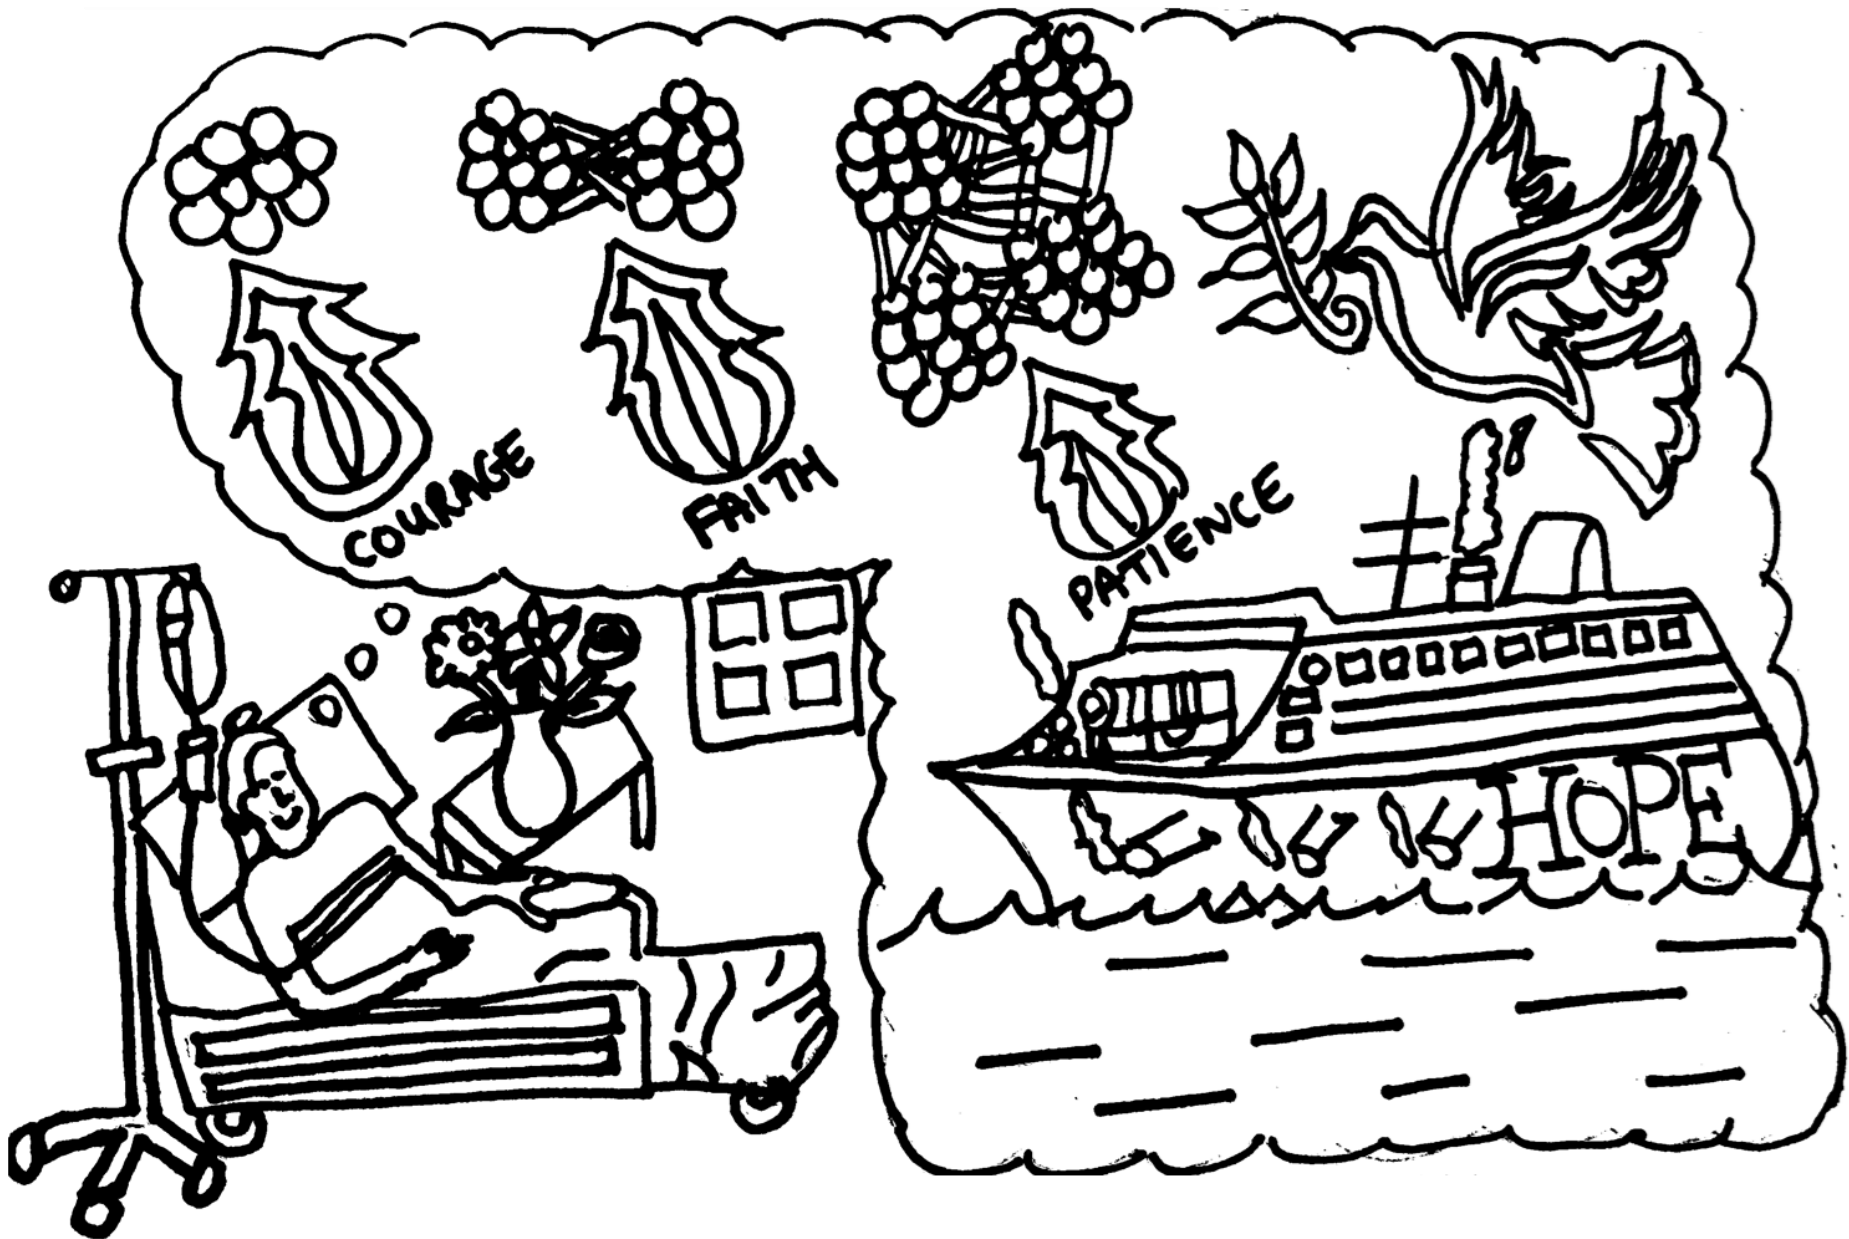

Hardworkingly to target every multiplying cancer cell.
With the sound of a ringing bell.

The metal ship of hope swam against the storms.
Pushing forward in all its forms.

Courage to Encourage,
Faith in Staith,
Patience and Complacency.

Restless doves carrying a message of peace,
“Ahh,” I sighed as I woke up and felt my shipping dreams were released.

UNKNOWN

The Key of Hope For The Unknown

Cancer is like a maze,
As you enter, you are unaware of what you will see, hear, or face.

Like a spiky cactus, you hold on and stand still,
Bearing the heat and rocks as you pass them, your level of strength gradually fulfils.

You try various ways to unlock and be cancer-free,
Unknowingly, the key is behind you, and you cannot see.

With hope, you raised the palms of your hands,
Praying for a sign of warmth, mercy without pain as the Lord alone understands.

As I stood up, I pointed towards a shining star-shaped compass,
'There it is!' I leapt with no rumpass.

Culturemore Mountains

After being inspired by the historical rocky Rushmore Mountains,
The hills and trees sprang to life with growth, like green fountains.

Culturemore mountains came into life as a piece of art,
The blend of global cultures was carved like goal darts.

From the West to the East,
Creating a multicultural feast.

Even the fish were amazed and swam out to get a clear view,
People-centered care is essential for every patient as well.

Their needs, values, and emotions, as they may feel.
Cancer is a disease that some may be able to express, and others prefer to conceal.

They may not know what is over the bridge,
The calmness of the healthcare professionals is felt by the visible natural ridges.

Their resilience and faith will grow as strong as the trees,
Their scent of peace and blooming flowers attracts the busy bees.

Nature is a beautiful thing,
Chirping birds singing.

The layer of clouds rests just above,
Carved delightful doves.
